The older I get, the more I realize that a 'true gift' is rarely something that can be purchased. It's a token or action given to symbolize one heart reaching out to another. And so it is here at Sunrise Horse Farm. Our volunteers reaching out to touch the heart of a child or teen brings a smile to their face..and mine. Last winter one of the high school students mucked out the stalls, pushed the wheelbarrow through the snow and out to the pile without any trouble. As he came back into the barn, I commented to him the fact that when he first came here he had difficulty balancing an empty wheelbarrow and now he could push and balance it without any trouble. His face radiated a huge smile as he pushed out his chest and said, "I'm going to be just like my dad!" And that is what Sunrise Horse Farm is all about..reaching out, providing an opportunity for the youth to accomplish tasks that will equip them with skills for the future. Do you have any extra time to volunteer and be a part of Sunrise Horse Farm? Please consider your schedule and contact us.

Heart Health

Heart disease impacts millions of Americans, but there are a number of steps that can be taken to prevent what can be a costly and life-threatening condition. One key risk factor for developing heart disease is your family history. This is something you can't control. However, risk factors can be controlled include obesity, high blood pressure, high cholesterol and smoking. All of these factors increase your personal risk of developing heart disease. Diabetics are also at higher risk. Making good lifestyle choices can greatly reduce risk of heart disease. Good choices would include:

- Maintaining a low fat diet
- Regular exercise
- Limiting alcohol intake

If you smoke, please find a way to quit. There are many resources available to help kick the habit. If you have diabetes, high blood pressure or high cholesterol, treating those medical conditions can also reduce your overall risk of heart disease. Controlling cholesterol to reduce the risk of heart attack involves more than simply lowering the bad type of cholesterol known as LDL (low density lipoproteins). Having adequate levels of the other type of cholesterol known as HDL (high-density lipoproteins) is also important. HDL cholesterol is known as the "good" cholesterol because having a high level of it seems to protect against heart attack. Think of the "H" in HDL as being "healthy." A high level of HDL helps rid the body of LDL and is linked with lowering the risk of heart disease or stroke. Best wishes in your attempts to live a healthy lifestyle. It takes work, so you may want to find a buddy to work with. Denise Brilliant is a nurse practitioner at Aurora Health Center Reedsville, 106 Mill Street. She can be reached at 920 754-4337.

WEIGHT MANAGEMENT

Well, you know how people have New Year's resolutions to lose weight and it is short lived or they gain it all back and then some. Because resolutions are based on resolve (will-power) and will-power is usually a fight between your mind and your body. And in the end, your body usually wins! It is time for you to take a look at Nature's Sunshine and see what they have to offer for weight management which is an individual program for each person because we are all different. We offer a Zyto scan specifically for weight loss with specific products for each person.

What would it feel like...

...to be healthy?

...to feel great every day?

...to have lots of energy?

...to look and feel good?

...to feel vibrantly healthy and alive?

Try a program for 90 days...throw away the scale and get a tape measure.

February special available from Roadway To Health - 25 % off the retail price of any weight management product or become a member and buy at direct cost.

Did you know that Christmas lights can be recycled?

Light Recycle Locations: PLEASE DO NOT PLACE IN RECYCLE CART. Kress Family Library (E. De Pere Location) and Habitat for Humanity Restores. Americans waste several million pounds of Christmas and other holiday lights each year. When they end up in the landfill they can pose a threat to wildlife, as they can choke or get strangled by the strands of lights, plus it takes anywhere from 100 to 1000 years for holiday lights to decompose.

Kids in College? Fill Out That FAFSA!

We've just begun the new year, but the next academic year is still months away. Nonetheless, if you have a child who will be attending college in the fall, it's not too soon to start thinking about what might be a vital component of paying for his or her higher education: financial aid.

Specifically, to help ensure that your child doesn't miss out on federal and state student grants, work-study and loans for the 2015-2016 school year, you'll want to complete the Free Application for Federal Student Aid (FAFSA) as soon as possible. (You can start the application process by visiting www.fafsa.ed.gov.)

Even if you have a fair amount of financial assets, you should still probably fill out a FAFSA. In the first place, all parents receive an "asset protection allowance," based on the age of the older parent. For two-parent families, this allowance generally shelters between $25,000 and $50,000 in assets from FAFSA considerations; for single parents, the range is typically between $6,000 and $10,000. The allowance may be higher for parents 65 and older. Furthermore, in determining your expected family contribution, FAFSA won't look at your pension plan, your IRA or your 401(k) or similar employer-sponsored retirement account.

Those of your assets held outside retirement plans — the balances in your checking and savings accounts, CDs, investment real estate, stocks, bonds, mutual funds, and so on — will be counted in the FAFSA calculations. As a parent, you will only be expected to contribute up to 5.64% of these assets, as opposed to assets held in your child's name, which are usually assessed at 20%.

You may want to pay special attention to one particular asset — the 529 plan. A 529 plan is a popular college savings vehicle, and for a pretty good reason: The investment dollars you place in a 529 plan can grow tax deferred, and withdrawals are free of federal and state taxes, provided the money is only used for higher education expenses. (The earnings portion of withdrawals used for other purposes may be fully taxable, and might incur a 10% penalty as well.) Plus, your 529 plan contributions may be deductible on your state taxes. Like your other non-retirement assets, a 529 plan will be assessed at up to 5.64% for FAFSA purposes. Some families, seeking to totally keep their 529 plan assets out of aid calculations, ask the grandparents to own the account. This could be a problem, though, because while the grandparents' 529 plan won't be reported as an asset on FAFSA, withdrawals from the plan will be treated as untaxed income to the beneficiary (i.e., the grandchild) on the next year's FAFSA. That can have a big impact on financial aid — a much bigger impact, in fact, than if the 529 plan was listed as a parental asset. Consequently, you might want to ask the grandparent to award ownership of the 529 plan to you. However, some state plans don't allow this change, so the grandparent might have to transfer the money to a different state's plan before giving up ownership.

In any case, be aware of these issues when you tackle the FAFSA. And don't delay in filling it out. Colleges have a closing date for accepting financial aid applications — and that's one deadline you won't want to miss.
