Breast cancer screening does save lives

By Denise Brilliant

Breast cancer continues to be the second leading cause of cancer deaths among women, exceeded only by lung cancer, according to the American Cancer Society, which also estimates that more than 230,000 women in the U.S. will be diagnosed with new cases of invasive breast cancer in 2015.

All women should undergo simple screening practices that can help detect early onset of breast cancer, which can lead to more effective treatment. Such practices include:

Breast self-awareness: You should develop a general awareness of how your breasts look and feel, and promptly report any changes to your health care provider. Changes to be mindful of include any new lump or mass, skin dimpling, swelling or redness or abnormal nipple discharge.

Clinical breast exam: An annual breast exam by a qualified health care provider is recommended, beginning at age 40.

Mammography: Aurora recommends that average-risk women have a screening mammogram every year beginning at age 40. If you're at high risk for breast cancer you may need mammograms or other imaging of breast tissue starting at an earlier age and more often. Family history is important in knowing your risk for breast cancer but so is environmental and lifestyle factors. Talk with your health care provider to determine the best plan of care for you.

If you have genetic mutations such as BRCA1 and BRCA2, or a history of radiation therapy to the chest, talk with your provider to formulate a customized plan, including earlier and more intensive screening that could include:

Breast imaging – mammography, ultrasonography and/or breast MRI.

Breast biopsy – procedure in which a radiologist or surgeon samples a portion or all of the suspicious tissue.

Breast MRI – may be indicated if you have a hereditary risk of developing breast cancer, or if you have dense breasts or scar tissue. A breast MRI may be helpful in determining the extent, size and distribution of newly diagnosed breast cancer.

Early detection of breast cancer is very important to improving the chances of cure and treatment options. Please do not wait. If you have concerns about the safety of mammograms, please discuss them with your health care provider.

Another good book is THE HEALING POWER OF NATURAL FOODS by May Bethel.

Some great comments from the book are included in this article. Consider what a wonderful job of self-cleansing goes on continually. The organs of elimination, the bowels, the kidneys and bladder, the lungs and the millions of pores of the skin carry away the waste products in a marvelous way. Your body has an intricate built-in self-repairing system. If you cut your finger, it heals. If you break a bone, nature has a way of knitting it together and the bone is made as good as new. Your body's self-immunizing system can work miracles. Countless bacteria enter your body with the food you eat, the air you breathe and through breaks in the skin. And yet, your health is safeguarded by the body's ingenious defense system.

And how do we keep our bodies functioning as God intended? Good food habits are basic to good body structure. It is up to us to give our body the best of care. We gamble with our health when we are slipshod in our eating habits. Our body does not come with spare parts. We must make doubly sure we take the best care of what we have. Galen, an early Greek physician and herbalist, made the statement that the right use of food and drink produces not only a good condition of the body, but also renders the mind more vigorous.

School is in session and we are in need of volunteers to be mentors for the students that come from the area schools. Don't have experience with horses? That is fine because there are various ongoing projects that do not include the horses.

A list of areas are: GREEN THUMB: Uses skills to keep the area a pleasant place to come. This job could include weeding, weed whacking, mowing grass. HOUSE-KEEPER: Takes on the task of cleaning the barn; sweeping, organizing, etc. ARTISAN: This person makes things beautiful by using his/her skills to dream up, construct, and/or decorate for the holidays. MEMORY MAKER: If you love photography and/or scrapbooking, this may be a good place for you to capture memories of the farm activities. We, also, have pictures to be put on poster board. MECHANIC/BUILDER: Repairs and performs maintenance on buildings and equipment. CHORES: Feed the horses, clean and fill water tanks, muck the barn. All time slots are open except Tuesday afternoon and Sunday morning. If you cannot do chores on a weekly basis, once a month would be a huge help.

Check your schedule and give us a call or send an email to sunrise_horsefarm@yahoo.com

Our mission statement is "Encouraging Youth To Find Hope" Thank you for whatever you can do to be an encouragement for the youth here at Sunrise Horse Farm.
